

DELAMERE MANOR

Bedroom map

Six bedrooms, sleeping up to twelve – with room to flex to fifteen when the family is bigger

The Wilbraham (The Honeymoon Suite)

Sleeps 2. Ensuite with freestanding oval bath, dressing room and private terrace.

The hero of the house, named for George Wilbraham who built Delamere in 1938. Generous, light-filled, with its own dressing room, private terrace and a freestanding oval bath made for the morning of the wedding.

The Summers Sleeps 2. Ensuite shower over bath.

A double room named for businessman John Summers, who owned the estate before Peter Gaskell. Its ensuite has a shower over the bath rather than a walk-in shower – please ask if accessibility is a consideration when allocating rooms.

The Gaskell Sleeps 2. Ensuite walk-in shower.

A double room overlooking the courtyard, named for entrepreneur Peter Gaskell, who owned the estate before Gary Barlow. A beautifully appointed double room – quietly impressive, and exactly what a good guest room should be.

The Barlow Suite Sleeps 2 plus 2 on the sofa bed.

Ensuite bath and shower, shared with The Delamere.

Gary Barlow's own bedroom during his decade at Delamere, now a generous double with its own lounge and space for two further guests on the sofa bed. The ensuite is shared with The Delamere across the hallway – a classic country-house arrangement, ideal when both rooms are taken together by family or close friends.

The Lady Stubbs Sleeps 2 plus 1 on the sofa bed.

Ensuite walk-in shower.

Named for Michelle herself – not a Lady by title, just the current lady of the manor. You'll likely meet her around the place, hands in the flower beds or down at the stables.

The Delamere Sleeps 2 (double or a twin). Bath and shower across the hall, shared with The Barlow Suite.

A peaceful double, named for the estate itself. Its bathroom sits across the hallway, shared with The Barlow Suite – best taken as a pair when family or close friends are happy to share.

A full cooked breakfast is included for all overnight guests.